The present invention relates to an electromechanical drive, in particular for a driver assistance system. A drive of the above-mentioned type is disclosed in German Published Patent Application No. 197 01 890. The first-mentioned document describes a twin-clutch transmission, in which one clutch is mechanically locked during gear shifts. In addition, a continuously variable transmission is provided, which is supplied with a certain torque via the permanently locked clutch. In order to lock the clutch during gear shifts, a self-locking control is provided, which operates, for example, on the basis of a reference value for the transmission input speed and an actual transmission output speed. The maximum torque that can be transmitted in a sliding friction clutch is limited here by the clutch characteristics. The reference value for the transmission input speed may be established by a calculation, for example as a function of the accelerator position and the engine speed. The self-locking clutch control method may be provided by a program control, for example. A drawback of the drive described in the foregoing German Published Patent Application No. 197 01 890 is that the control can only operate when there is adequate transmission line and clutch torque. If the transmission line or the clutch has a certain amount of torque, the clutch will lock even if the reference value is exceeded, and consequently, driving may be impaired if the clutch locks. A factor that may impair driving in such a case is the interruption in acceleration, which is caused by the locking of the clutch.

Q: Unable to connect to Google Cloud Messaging server for Android I'm trying to create a GCM application that communicates with a server. But I'm not able to connect. The code I'm using is this: private static String serverUrl = ""; / Called when the activity is first created. */ @Override public void onCreate(Bundle savedInstanceState) { super.onCreate(savedInstanceState); setContentView(R.layout.activity_main); ServerSocket socket = null; try { socket = new ServerSocket(9000); } catch (IOException e) { ba244e880a
