Digitalb Conax Keys

It is very common to see this on a digitalb.com page, although it might come up here or in Moesat. It is the public key of the digitalb card. This is obtained by typing the public key appended to * on the card's displayed serial number. Then, download the digitalb client from that is compatible with your box. Open the client, create an account if you don't have one already, then move to the "Download Configuration File" area under "Options". There are two files. The "Digitalb_Serie_N" file contains the serial number of your card and the "Digitalb_Pubkey" file contains the public key. Digitalb Card - Pairing I guess this is the easy answer, I got the card pairing by connecting to the CIPS-C & pushing the key. Key shown was the third (last) on the card, which seems to be the public key. Digitalb card changed all the PINs (to conax). And how to pair the card with other CIPS-C box? (from Digitalb support). Since I want to get the Keys from DigitalB Card, I have some questions. Why are the keys changed? The PIN is not changed. My question is about the pairings between the (serial)number & the public key. How I know which one is correct? . I think the keys are chanisged beacuse the pay TV channel in digital b .
