Since 1990 the transjugular intrahepatic portosystemic shunt (TIPS) is the method of choice for the treatment of portal hypertension and treatment of variceal bleeding. In the last two years more than 400 patients have been treated with TIPS at the Medical University of Graz. The main indication for the TIPS is refractory ascites in cirrhosis of the liver. TIPS has many advantages compared to the traditional surgical portosystemic shunts. Shunt occlusion can be performed with partial or total occlusion. Endovascular occlusion techniques such as detachable balloon can be used for the occlusion of the shunt. Balloon occlusion of the shunt in combination with transjugular heparinisation has been shown to be an effective and safe treatment for variceal bleeding. Adequate placement of the stent is a main concern for the performance of TIPS. The angiographic technique for the placement of the stent is the most important method. The 80eaf3aba8
