Some of his plays were later filmed. He was the first Dravidian politician to make extensive use of Tamil cinema for political propaganda. . He was also the first to publicly challenge the idea of "Indians as a single nation. He was the first to openly declare in 1960 that the Tamils were not a separate nation but only a sub-group of the sub-continent. . He was the first politician to start talking about the "Tamil issue" (as an issue between India and Sri Lanka, not between races) at a time when most of India's politicians and intellectuals viewed it as a matter of South India only. .
