The deep UV system provides excellent film quality and uniformity, low defectivity, excellent thickness control and a fast throughput. Applications OLED Displays The fast response times and wide viewing angle of OLED displays have made them an increasingly popular option for mobile devices. However, the devices also have a very thin backlight structure that requires protective layers to prevent cracking and / or delaminating. Lixil products offer a very high level of film quality at very competitive prices and make an excellent contribution to the achievement of this challenging requirement. Solar Cells Although the conductive film used as a bottom electrode in solar cells is much thicker (up to 2000nm) than that used in OLED displays, the benefits of the lower thickness and increased electrical and optical conductivity offered by Lixil's ultra-thin products in the solar cell application are substantial, even for devices working at high and low temperatures. In addition to the low cost and excellent film quality, Lixil's products also offer faster roll-to-roll speeds, the highest uniformity and lowest defectivity. For further information, please call our customer service or download the application note below. Advanced Thermally-Driven material deposition tool We also offer a highly specialized tool for thermally-driven film deposition. A metal block with a high thermal conductivity top plate is set up at the end of the spindle line. This top plate provides a continuous and smooth temperature gradient of at least 5°C across the diameter of the block. This feature enables deposition of ultra-thin films across the length of a glass or stainless steel substrate.

1. Field of the Invention
The present invention generally relates to the field of semiconductor fabrication processes and, more particularly, to a method for preparing semi-insulative or high temperature-doped layers for use in semiconductor devices.

2. Description of the Related Art
Thermally-activated current gain in high-frequency solid-state devices is obtained through a high doping density of minority carriers in the base material. To
